BIG BATTLE NEAR NAPLES

Eisenhower Says 'All-Out Attack'

A "TERRIFIC BATTLE" BETWEEN ALLIED AND GERMAN FORCES IS GOING ON IN THE NAPLES AREA, ACCORDING TO REPORTS THIS MORNING.

Large-scale landings were made near the city early yesterday, and almost immediately the invaders were engaged in stiff fighting, but advanced, capturing German prisoners.

While unconfirmed reports stated that Allied forces have also landed at many other places, including Genoa, General Eisenhower declared last night:—

"The time has come to discontinue nibbling at islands and hit the Germans where it hurts. It is better to launch an all-out invasion of the Italian mainland. Our object is to trap and smash the enemy."

"Parachutists" Warning

German overseas radio states that German troops have occupied North and Central Italy.

The German public were warned by wireless last night against possible landings by Allied parachutists. It was stated that agents had already been dropped from 'planes.

More Troops Landed

Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied Headquarters states:—

"Allied troops are now locked in combat with the Germans near the Naples coast, but a terrific struggle is also taking place behind the lines of both forces. They are building up strong resources of weapons, supplies and materials.

"Disembarkation of strong Allied forces is going ahead with all speed. Stiff fighting with the latest weapons of war is probable.

"The Germans appear bound to fight strongly to hold open a corridor for the German troops farther south. A number of German prisoners have already been taken, and the fighting is reported to be at close quarters.

"Two hundred miles farther south General Montgomery's army in the toe of Italy is making substantial progress. The Germans are fighting alone. British and Canadian troops have secured a second lateral road across the toe, from Locri to Gioia.

NAVAL GUARD

"As they did so other Allied troops were successfully landed, protected by the Royal Navy, at Vibo Valentia, 30 miles ahead of the main Eighth Army, and 60 miles from the original landing point on the Messina Straits. This landing met with only faint opposition."

First Allied troops to land—at Amalfi, west of Salerno, according to the Germans—are now in contact with Germans rushed to oppose them. The next few hours may be critical, say messages from Allied H.Q.

Strong German counter-attacks are expected as soon as the German Command is sure where the strongest Allied bid is being made. Considerable concentrations of German troops are believed to be in the Naples area.

There was some opposition by German coastal guns to the landing by Allied forces in the Naples area, to which the Allied warships effectively replied. The convoy taking the landing force had air cover by day and night and reached its destination safely.

Algiers Radio reported last night that further reinforcements are being disembarked in the Naples area.

According to a Reuter message from Allied Headquarters, "the whole area of approximately 1,000 square miles round Naples is swarming with the Allied invasion fleet. The ships are of varied size, from assault barges to warships. The barges were sailing in dozens of large formations."

Italian sources in Madrid reported yesterday that additional Allied landings had been made in Sardinia and at Genoa.

So far as is known in London, writes a Press Association Military Correspondent, there are about eighteen German divisions in Italy. About half these are concentrated in the North, and the remainder are strung out along the whole length of Italy as far south as the "toe."

Only insignificant fighting occurred when the Germans occupied North and Central Italy, a Berlin message states. Italian frontier reports reaching New York stated that Italian troops were now marching with the Allied forces advancing northwards from Naples.

A despatch from the Italo-Swiss frontier stated that German troops appear to have evacuated Milan and Turin. No German soldiers have approached the Italian side of the frontier, and railway traffic between Switzerland and Italy is normal.

The Germans claim that the "most important communication lines have been safeguarded, particularly the railway network in North and Central Italy."

The Italian News Agency stated that German troops have surrounded the Genoa area, and three armed divisions are alleged to be converging on the great northern port. Another report quoted by the Italian News Agency suggested that the British fleet was cruising off Genoa.

American Fifth Army In Action

MR. STIMSON, United States War Secretary, said yesterday that the Allied landing forces at Naples included "considerable units of the American Fifth Army."

He estimated that there were from fifteen to twenty German divisions in Italy—a greater number of troops than they had in Tunisia or Sicily.

He said: "We shall probably experience a great deal of hard fighting in Italy." He pointed out that the Germans were in a position to reinforce their troops if necessary.

"Two strong enemies remain," he added. "There is no justification for any assurance that they will soon be eliminated. An early end to the war cannot be expected."

The disclosure by Mr. Stimson that men from the United States Fifth Army landed in the Naples area has revived speculation on Allied plans for General Patton and his Seventh Army. There has been no mention of this force since the capture of Messina.

General Sir Henry Wilson, C.-in-C., Middle East, stated in Cairo yesterday that the Italian surrender had removed 65 divisions from the ranks of the Axis.

He said that there were at present between 20 and 30 Italian divisions in the Balkans.

General Wilson said that if the Italians wanted a quick peace they must destroy and hamper the Germans on Italian soil.

Troops Disarmed In Croatia

German Radio said last night that Italian troops in Dalmatia were withdrawn from this area as well as from Greece some time ago at the request of the German Government as a "precautionary measure."

Italian troops stationed in Croatia were disarmed on Wednesday night, it was added, and numerous Italian subjects arrested for reasons of state.

The Italian Embassy and Consulate in Zagreb, the Croatian capital, have been occupied by Croatian troops and the Italian diplomatic personnel placed under Croat police supervision.

Italian troops in Belgrade were ordered to lay down their arms, which were confiscated.

The Croat administration has issued a proclamation announcing that the coast districts of Dalmatia and Croatia, which were ceded to Italy, have now been incorporated into Croatia.

The German Overseas News Agency, quoting a Zagreb message, later said: "The arrest of Italian subjects and the disarming of Italian troops continues. Institutions and buildings which served Italian organisations are guarded by troops and police."—(Reuter.)

"Fight to Last" Says Goebbels

DR. GOEBBELS, commenting in Das Reich on the capitulation of Italy, says, according to the German Overseas News Service:—

"More than once the German people have demonstrated their firm and unshakable will to continue this war to the last ditch of the drums. In the present time there is only one deadly sin — cowardice. Whoever cowardly fears a decision will one day have to capitulate.

"Whoever in the middle of danger wavers can at least be silent in front of his neighbours so as not to infect them with his wavers. In critical situations one must keep one's heart in one's hand and jump over the threatening precipice."

Landing Fleet Attacked

The German News Agency stated last night that heavy German bombers sank an Allied cruiser yesterday, when the Luftwaffe attacked an Allied landing fleet in the Gulf of Salerno, South of Naples. "The heavy bombers," it was added, "severely damaged another cruiser and 17 transports and merchant ships, which may be reckoned for the most part as total losses. Despite strong enemy fighter defence, the attack on this Anglo-American naval formation was kept up throughout the whole day. The attack is still in progress."

RAID ON H.Q.

Powerful Allied air attacks—including a sudden blow at the German Headquarters at Fascatti, 15 miles south-east of Rome—were kept up until just before General Clark's men landed on the beaches in the Naples area.

Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied Headquarters stated that this blow, six hours before Italy officially went out of the war, was a crippling one for the Germans. They used practically every building in the town for their Headquarters.

Going over in three waves, with seven minutes intervals, Flying Fortresses dropped several hundred tons of high explosive bombs in the first raid on the town. The entire town was set ablaze, and smoke spiralled up thousands of feet. Villas of the German Staff offices went up in flames. The Fortresses had a 30 minutes running battle with 40 to 50 German fighters, 28 of which were shot down.

An almost continuous procession of Allied aircraft is already landing on airfields in Southern Italy. It is understood in well-informed Allied quarters that preparations for sustained attacks on Berlin, industrial Germany, and satellite countries from these fields are being completed.

A Swiss Telegraphic Agency despatch from Chiasso yesterday said that German and Italian troops were fighting in the streets of Tortona, while reports increase of grave incidents in zones of Northern Italy.

The Paris radio military commentator said last night: "German and Italian troops are locked in vicious fighting all over Italy."

NO FRICTION

The German News Agency stated: "So far there has been no friction between German and Italian troops at any point. In several instances Italian officers appealed to their troops to lay down their arms rather than fight the Germans."

All railway communications between Italy and Germany are interrupted, as well as telegraph and telephone communications. Italian workers are besieging passport offices in Berlin.—(Reuter, A.P. and P.A.)

Reports from the Italian-Swiss border state that Genoa has been entirely occupied by German troops after a "lively resistance by the Italian garrison."—(Reuter.)

Persia Declares War

Iran has declared war on Germany, according to a Reuter message from Teheran.

Longer Curfew in Copenhagen

A German warrant officer was killed in Copenhagen on September 7 by a revolver shot fired from behind a cyclist, says Danish Radio. The Germans have now tightened the curfew to start at 9 p.m. instead of 10 p.m. Cycling is prohibited from 8 p.m.—(Reuter.)

Executions in Prague

Five Czech workers in a Moravian arms factory have been executed in Prague "for high treason and sabotage," it is officially announced, according to a Reuter telegram from Zurich. Two peasants have been executed for possessing arms and ammunition.

Secret Agreements Must Be Ratified

Mr. W. Sterling Cole, Congress representative from New York and member of the House Naval Committee, declared in Washington, yesterday, that the Atlantic Charter and any secret agreements with other nations are not binding until ratified by Congress. He has prepared a 54-word one-sentence measure to "avoid having some foreign Government tell us after the war that a representative of the United States made certain promises and commitments which it had accepted in good faith."—(Reuter.)

No Pork Time-Table

"Because there is no uniformity in conditions of supply, the Dublin Master Pork Butchers' Association, at a meeting last night, would not agree to close pork shops at fixed early hours. Each shop will remain open as supplies permit.

REAL INVASION IN FRANCE

THE German High Command spokesman in Berlin yesterday said that there were many German divisions in Italy and that reinforcements had been sent in the last few days.

The German Army in Italy was taking up battle positions, and the Anglo-American forces would have no walk-over, he added. Further landings in Southern Europe should be expected in the next few days. It was very likely that Southern France would be the target of the real Allied invasion.

The spokesman said it could not be denied that the war has taken a serious turn. "The Allies have now a foothold in Europe."—(Reuter.)

Message To Hitler: "Why We Gave In"

THE text of a telegram to Hitler and other Axis leaders by Badoglio giving the reasons for Italy's surrender was issued last night by the Italian News Agency. The telegram stated:—

"In spite of all our efforts, our defences have now collapsed. The enemy's advance could not be stemmed, and invasion is in progress. Italy has no force of resistance left.

"Her greatest towns from Milan to Palermo have been either destroyed or occupied by the enemy. Their industries have been paralysed. Italy's communication net, which is so necessary in view of the geographical shape of the country, has been thrown out of gear.

"Her resources are completely exhausted additionally owing to the very severe and growing restrictions of imports from Germany. There is no longer any point of the national territory which is not open to enemy attacks.

"This has been proved by the fact that the enemy was able to land how, where, and when he wanted with a powerful force, breaking every resistance, and growing day by day in quantity and power, ruining the country.

ALL HOPE GONE

"In these conditions the Italian Government can no longer bear the responsibility for the continuation of the war, which has already cost Italy—beyond the loss of her colonial empire—the destruction of her cities, the annihilation of her industries and of her merchant navy and her railway network, and has finally led to the invasion of her territory itself.

"It cannot be demanded of any people to continue the fight when every legitimate hope—I do not say of victory, but even of defence—has vanished.

"To avoid total ruin Italy, therefore, was forced to address a request for an Armistice to the enemy."—(Reuter and A.P.).

Prayers for Murdered Gardai

An anniversary Mass for the repose of the soul of the late Detective-Sergeant Denis O'Brien, who was shot at his home, Ballyboden, Rathfarnham, was said in the Chapel Royal, Dublin Castle, by Rev. Father Wiggins, Army Chaplain, on Wednesday. Prayers were also offered for the repose of the souls of the late Detective-Sergeant Patrick McKeown, Detective Officer Richard Hyland, Detective Officer George Mordaunt, and other members of An Garda who were shot in the course of their duty.

A VIEW OF NAPLES

War's Most Daring "Exercise"

"UNDER the very nose of the Germans, British and Canadian troops have just completed the most daring and ambitious amphibious exercise of the war," states the P.A. War Correspondent. "Hundreds of landing craft, with thousands of men, equipment and guns, have sailed out towards the French coast with a powerful naval escort, protected overhead by a mighty air armada.

"Nearly the whole of the expedition was made in daylight; yet neither the Luftwaffe nor the German Navy interfered.

"Great concentration of troops in Southern England, preparing for the exercise, were covered by the R.A.F. and the United States Army Air Forces, which attacked the airfields of Northern France and the Boulogne area almost without ceasing.

"The 'exercise' was carried out without a hitch. For the Army and Navy it was of immeasurable value. The whole complicated business of embarking a great force was tested and timed to a split-second."

IN THE AIR

"Air Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh Mallory, Air Officer Commanding-in-Chief of Fighter Command, provided effective protection for the naval and military units engaged in the amphibious exercise," states the Air Ministry News Service. To ensure the success of the operations 2,000 fighter sorties were flown over Northern France and the English Channel, while United States Air Force and R.A.F. medium bombers carried out 1,000 sorties. By yesterday evening over 1,500 fighter sorties had been made.

Heavy explosions on the other side of the Channel were frequent, and shook buildings in Folkestone like a miniature earthquake. The area of activity appeared to be from Boulogne to Dunkirk.

Even Londoners saw something of the big offensive when bombers, in perfect formation, passed over the city in the morning.

A communiqué from the British Air Ministry and U.S. Headquarters, European theatre, recorded that not a single bomber or fighter was lost in the Boulogne raid or during the night. "One enemy 'plane was destroyed," it added.

The Anglo-U.S. air fleet was made up of hundreds and hundreds of bombers and fighters. They filled the Channel skies as the bombardment went on without pause.

Targets included an aircraft engine factory near Paris, objectives in the Boulogne, Bethune, Merville, Bryas-Sud and St. Omar areas, and airfields at Beauvais-Tille, Beaumont-Sur-Oise, Lille Nord, Lille-Vendeville, Vitry-en-Artois, and Abbeville-Drucat.

Little fighter opposition was encountered, except in the attacks in the Paris area, over which Fortresses, it is stated, shot down 15 Axis fighters.

"From all these operations," it is stated, "2 heavy bombers, 3 medium bombers and 3 fighters are missing. A pilot of one fighter is safe."

Vichy radio said last night that casualties in Paris yesterday totalled 60 dead and 105 injured.

Widespread damage and indescribable confusion were caused in Mannheim and Ludwigshaven by the R.A.F. raids on Sunday, says the Muelhauser Tageblatt, quoted by Reuter.

The centre of Ludwigshaven was practically annihilated, it was added.

Mussolini Arrested and Tied to Stretcher

—BERLIN BROADCAST

GERMAN Radio yesterday broadcast a sensational description of how Mussolini was arrested after seeing the King of Italy, and was dragged into a car and tied to a stretcher.

The radio stated:—

"After a session of the Fascist Grand Council the Duce proceeded to the King in order to demand powers for the strictest measures against persons sabotaging the Italian war effort.

"The Duce did not know that the King and Badoglio had been secretly preparing the coup for some days.

"The meeting between Mussolini and the King lasted for two hours. Then the King declared:—'I have to inform you that your successor as Prime Minister has already been nominated, and has already assumed office. He is Marshal Badoglio.'

"Mussolini then approached the exit, declaring that he had already taken his decision.

"During this meeting Badoglio had ready made all preparations for the coup against Mussolini. Secretly he had handed over police power to the former Chief of Police, Senise, and had taken power himself over the Carabinieri.

"In this way all weapons supporting the Fascist régime were paralysed by the traitors.

"When Mussolini stepped down the last steps of the staircase and could not see his car he shouted to his personnel: 'Bring up my car.'

"At this moment the police major approached Mussolini and said: 'Excellency, I have the order to arrest you. I must ask you to enter this car.'

"Mussolini fiercely resisted, but was dragged into the car with brutal force and was tied on to a stretcher.

"The car quickly drove from the Villa Savoia to the police barracks, and Mussolini was later transferred to other places.

"Later he was taken to the Fort Braschi, near Rome, and then to the island of Penra, in the Gulf of Gaeta."—(A.P.).

Arctic Island Attacked

German Radio stated last night that German naval forces and seaborne forces of a Grenadier regiment attacked strong points on Spitzbergen. "The purpose of the operation was to destroy extensive military installations and the large stocks of ammunition and fuel, as well as the radio and meteorological station," it said, and added: "The enemy's strong points were extensively damaged. The enemy suffered considerable losses. A large number of prisoners were brought in. Our losses were slight, and the German formation, with the seaborne troops, has returned to its base."

Nothing is known in official circles in London of the reported raid.

Spitzbergen is a barren, uninhabited island 400 miles north of Norway, and of no strategic importance, writes a Press Association naval correspondent. Everything in Spitzbergen that could help the German war effort—coalmines, oil wells and fish-curing factories—had been wrecked by Allied forces.—(Reuter and P.A.).

The total live register of unemployed in the twenty-six counties on September 4th was 49,624.

America's Fleet of 'Plane Carriers

Mr. James Forreatal, United States Under-Secretary for the Navy, describing aircraft carriers as "one of America's most potent weapons" for striking at the heart of Japan, said yesterday in Kansas City that by the year's end there would be more than 14 first-line carriers with the Fleet, not counting the converted merchantmen.

The United States Navy now has ten times as many 'planes as in 1940, and an equal increase in pilots, who number about 25,000, he added.—(Associated Press.)

"Bombs on Rome"

The Italian News Agency reported that an alert was sounded in Rome last night, and an unidentified 'plane dropped several bombs.—(Reuter.)

British Destroyer Lost

A British Admiralty communique states:—"The Board of Admiralty regrets to announce the loss of the destroyer H.M.S. Puckeridge (Lieut. J. C. Cartwright, D.S.C., R.N.). The next-of-kin of casualties have been informed."

Rail Town Falls In Drive For Dnieper

MARSHAL STALIN, in an Order of the Day, yesterday announced the capture of Bakhmach, the vital railway junction controlling the main lateral communications between the Germans' central and southern armies.

Russian troops have driven deeper the wedge between the central and southern German armies.

An advance of five to six miles in the area of Priluki, 50 miles south-west of Bakhmach and 80 miles east of Kiev, was reported in last night's communiqué from Moscow.

RETREATING

In the Southern Ukraine, where the Germans are retreating on a 100 miles front, pursuing Russian forces fanning out west of Stalino have advanced six to nine miles and occupied over 180 places.

With the road opened by the smashing of German resistance in the Donbas, twin Russian forces are now pushing quickly from Krasnoarmeiskoe along the two railways which run to the great industrial city of Dnepropetrovsk, key to the Dnieper bend and hub of the Ukrainian railway system. Advanced units of one of these forces are only 40 miles from Pavlograd, itself 30 miles north-east of Dnepropetrovsk. The capture of Pavlograd would cut the vital railway from Kharkov, which crosses the Donbas-Dnepropetrovsk line and runs south to Zaporozhe, Melitopol and the Crimea.

As Russian tanks, troops, guns and lorries pour through Stalino in an unending stream in pursuit of the defeated German Donbas army, the city is coming to life again after two years of German occupation. The first troops to fight their way in found hundreds of fires. The main street was in flames from end to end. So hasty was the Germans' retreat that one infantry division commander, General Kaspar, fled on foot.

UKRAINE THREAT

That German troops in the Ukraine face a threat of encirclement was stated last night by the German News Agency in a review of the southern front fighting. It also stated that Russian forces had stormed the Desna River — last natural defence line before the Upper Dnieper. The Agency also referred to breaches in the German lines south of Bryansk and west of Kirov, on the Smolensk front. It claimed that all the breaches had been sealed off. The Agency said that the Soviet forces which crossed the Desna were annihilated or driven back.

The Russian advance is dictated —and will be limited—by the plans of the German High Command, said the German News Agency last night. "Naturally, it cannot be said how far the German Command intends to let the Soviet offensive roll on," said the Agency, adding: "German movements are still dictated solely by the German High Command, which means to force the Soviets to the maximum attrition of their forces by economising German forces."

SOVIET ADVANCE

Last night's Soviet communiqué announcing the capture of Bukhmach, claimed the following gains: West of Stalino an advance of six to nine miles and the occupation of over 180 inhabited localities, including the district centre of Dobropolye and the railway station of Cherkasskaya; in the Priluki direction an advance of five to six miles and the capture of 80 inhabited localities; south of Bryansk, the capture of over 40 inhabited localities in an advance of four to eight miles; north of Bryansk, the capture of the town of Luidinov.

Bakhmach, 110 miles from Kiev, on the Kursk-Kiev railway, is the junction of the main lateral railway running from Minsk through Gomel to Kremenchug and the Dnieper. Its capture means the final cutting of forward communications between the central and southern German armies.

Luidinov is forty-five miles north of Bryansk. It is the rail terminus for routes from Vyazma in the north and Sukhinichi in the west and railhead of a local line from Bryansk.

Priluki is fifty miles south-west of Bakhmach and eighty miles east of Kiev. It is on the Bakhmach-Cherkassy-Odessa lateral railway, linking the Kiev-Konotop line with railway between Poltava and Kiev.

A "Russian landing south of Stalino on the coast of the Sea of Azov was announced last night in a German High Command report, broadcast by the German Radio. The report added:—"Countermeasures were taken at once. The landing forces were attacked from all sides, and the beach-head sealed off. The Russian troops are now facing annihilation." The coastal stretch directly south of Stalino is the area of the port of Mariupol.

Captain Sertorius, German Overseas News Agency commentator, last night warned of the possibility that the Russians "will soon launch an assault on another sector with their apparently unexhausted reserves to achieve that large-scale breakthrough which, in spite of territorial gains, they have so far failed to achieve."—(Reuter.)

Record Flight from Britain To West Africa

Leaving Whitehall after tea on Wednesday, Viscount Swinton and Colonel Oliver Stanley reached Bathurst, British West Africa, in time for breakfast yesterday morning. They were two of the ten passengers of a Liberator of R.A.F. Transport Command, in which the Air Officer Commander-in-Chief, Air Chief Marshal Sir Frederick Bowhill, has frequently made long distance flights to many parts of the world.

This is the first time that a passenger-carrying aircraft has flown direct between the United Kingdom and British West Africa—a distance of 3,150 statute miles. The flight was completed in 15 hrs. 58 mins., exactly on schedule.

Viscount Swinton, the Cabinet Minister resident in British West Africa, returns after a brief visit to London for consultations. Colonel Oliver Stanley, Secretary of State for the Colonies, is visiting British West Africa to gain firsthand knowledge of the local background, and to see something of the West African war effort.

Persil suds keep active for three lots of "whites"!

The white wash seems to be much heavier some weeks. You look at it and wonder how you'll manage! Well, crowding the copper is a great mistake. Just try this idea instead. Sort out the things into three bundles — dirtiest, less dirty, and fairly clean. Wash the fairly clean things first, using Persil in the ordinary way. While this is going on put the other bundles in pails of clean cold water and leave them to soak. Then when your first bundle is washed wring out the next bundle and put that in the same Persil suds. Follow on with the third bundle. You'll find it quite easy to get your three white washes all absolutely Persil-white with one lot of Persil suds!

Australians Five Miles From Lae

Australian troops driving along the New Guinea coast are less than five miles from Lae, vital Japanese stronghold, Allied Headquarters, South Pacific, states Twenty thousand Japanese are surrounded in the Lae-Salamaua area. The main Allied spearhead, consisting of the seaborne troops landed north-east of the town, has advanced nearly sixteen miles without meeting serious resistance. The airborne forces landed in the Markham Valley, to the west, are consolidating their positions, while close pressure is maintained in the south.

Finschhafen, the Japanese supply base fifty miles north-east of Lae, from which the Japanese are now cut off, was attacked by United States heavy bombers. A Japanese force of 27 bombers and 30 fighters was intercepted near Morobe and forced to jettison their bombs, losing four fighters. Five fighters out of twenty escorting a Japanese reconnaissance 'plane over Port Darwin were shot down.

United States submarines have reported sinking six Japanese cargo vessels and damaging four others in Far East waters, says a United States Navy communiqué. The ships sunk included two large freighters, one large cargo vessel and one medium tanker. The figures raise to 319 the total number of Japanese transport, cargo and warships reported sunk or damaged by United States submarines.—(Reuter.)

British Fleet May Go to Indian Ocean

"Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden assured us the instant Italy was eliminated from the war and the Mediterranean cleared the British Mediterranean Fleet would be available in the Indian Ocean," Senator Ralph Brewster told correspondents yesterday, says the Associated Press Correspondent at Allied Headquarters, New Guinea.

Causes of Infantile Paralysis Outbreak

That the people of Clare probably have now a much greater degree of immunity against infantile paralysis than they had last year is one of the conclusions advanced by the Clare County Medical Officer of Health, Dr. G. P. McCarthy, in his annual report.

In his report, which is one of the most important documents referring to last year's outbreak, Dr. McCarthy says that during the last four months of 1942 76 cases occurred, of which 32 (41 per cent.) were fatal. This rate, which is high compared with the American and Scandinavian rates—which range from 5 to 30 per cent.—may have been due to the introduction of new strains of the virus, or to the lowering of the resistance of the community, or to a sudden raising of the virulence of the causative organism among healthy carriers.

He goes on to mention some strange phenomena of the outbreak. In some cases it seemed to have been spread by close contact, but in another case a child who shared the same perambulator with an infected child escaped the disease.

Scottish Welcome Gains Another Victory

A ROYAL SUN, fully recovered from her recent injury, gave another brilliant performance at the Curragh yesterday, when she followed up her Phoenix Plate victory by coming away from her eight opponents, to win the Anglesey Stakes, over the stiff six furlongs 63 yards, in a canter. Clearly this daughter of Nearco and Solar Flower is an exceptionally good filly. As was to be expected, she was a strong odds-on favourite.

Scottish Welcome, a ready winner at Limerick Junction on the previous day, showed no ill-effects of his all-night train journey in the Rogers Memorial Gold Cup, in which his 7lb. penalty was almost completely nullified by the fact that J. Tyrrell claimed the apprentice allowance. With Nearctic and Comerlone, he was always in a good position, and, when the former pair compounded as they came into the straight, Mr. James Grew's good horse went on, to score comfortably from Ballynure, who made up a lot of ground in the last few furlongs, and Felspar. Egan in Fine Form

THE greatest crop of junior tennis players have a long way to go still before they can upset the leading Irish seniors, as was shown in yesterday's play in the Irish hard court championships. R. J. McCabe, runner-up for the junior title recently, put up an exhibition show against R. F. Egan in the third round of the men's singles, but he only got four games in the two sets. In base-line driving duels McCabe matched his opponent in pace and length, but once Egan had drawn the junior out of position he was able to apply the finishing touch either with a ground shot taken almost on the half-volley or a perfectly-judged low volley at the net. Nearly every game went to deuce, but Egan could not be held on one of his most polished displays this season Results:—

Chief Soccer Games at Crumlin and Tolka Park

NEITHER Cork United nor Shamrock Rovers has won the City Cup. With only four "rounds" to go, the League of Ireland champions hold a lead of one point over the Rovers, St. James's Gate, Dundalk and Drumcondra, so that this week-end's games are of grave concern to each of these clubs. There will be two heavy clashes, one at Crumlin and the other at Tolka Park; but, unfortunately, both are on Sunday.

To-morrow, Limerick meet Shelbourne at Shelbourne Park. On their first visit to the city to play this side, the Limerick forwards could not have been less convincing, and it is to be hoped that new they will do better, although their 3-1 defeat at home by Drumcondra last Sunday does not justify that hope.

Cork United will be paying their visit to Dublin this week-end, they got a run for it last Sunday at the Markets Field, where, by general consent, they were lucky to get away with both points from Shelbourne. The half-back line, it seems, is a weak link this season, but the Cork directorate and Hayes may be relied on to remedy any defect that continues to be manifest in the team, for they are the most business-like and go-ahead of all our club managements.

The Gate have a sturdy defence, and a speedy set of forwards, Dunne and Kinahan to say nothing of Flanagan, but it is not easy to slip Hayes and Duffy, even if the halves should be bested.

Naturally, Cork United will be the more fancied. A much more doubtful proposition is furnished by Drumcondra and the Rovers, who should provide the usual big Tolka Park crowd with the most stirring game of the four. Ignoring the results of their match at Cork, which the Rovers won without some of their regular players, little, if any, fault could be found with the team in their other matches, the two against Dundalk in particular, and Drumcondra will need to reveal improvement in the front line to gain the upper hand.

In the other match, Dundalk will have Bohemians at Oriel Park. Bohemians still are trying out their many unknown players in a good idea, but when Kevin O'Flanagan is available for the most important of the competitions—the League and Cup—the position, from their point of view, is certain to improve considerably.

To-morrow (3.30) Shelbourne v. Limerick, Shelbourne Park.

Sunday (3.30) — St. James's Gate v. Cork United, Crumlin; Drumcondra v. Shamrock Rovers, Tolka Park; Dundalk v. Bohemians, Dundalk.

The annual general meeting of the Leinster Branch of the Irish Hockey Union was held at Londonbridge road last night. Several amendments to the rules put forward by the Foregate Committee, were adopted; notably the rule relating to the division of the senior teams into two sections was deleted.

It was unanimously decided that arrangements were being made to run an Army League, the matches to be played on Thursdays.

YACHTING

The Dublin Bay S.C. had an excellent evening's sailing yesterday for all classes. The 21-Footers turned out in full strength of seven, and the race provided Rabelle (H. Wright) with her first win of the season, she finishing 87 secs. ahead of Oola (N. Falkiner), with Nanaon (E. Lee) and then Inishmaine, Manreen, Garavoge and Geraldine. The first two home were also winners of prizes on handicap.

The 17-Footers' match took the form of a crews' race, and here Eileen, steered by Mr. T. H. Roche, overhauled Rita and Silver Moon half-way home, to win nicely from the pair. The order of the others to finish was Rosemary, Delginis, Bobolink and Mavis.

Among the Mermaids, the scratch-boat Oonagh led a fleet of ten at the finishing line, followed by Daphne and Amy, none of these were able to allow their handicaps to Tuano and Dalchick, who took first and second prizes on handicap.

The handicaps in the Cruisers' class are in abeyance, but a newcomer to this division in Marlies (A. F. Buckley) sailed 3 mins. 14 secs. ahead of Mercia, who beat Windward by just over a minute for third place. Others to finish were Sonia, Nepenthe (who started 10 mins. behind the others), Marie and Vega.

Central Bank Dividends.—By eight votes to six, the Meath County Council ruled out a resolution viewing with resentment the increasing tendency to confine entrance to public examinations for junior clerkships in the Central Bank and certain other public appointments to pupils of the secondary schools, with the consequent exclusion of students from vocational and national schools.

Art Exhibition in Waterford

Thanks to the Department of Technical Education for providing "this artistic and educational treat" for the people of Waterford were expressed by Archdeacon Kelleher, P.P., Chairman of the City of Waterford Vocational Committee, when, at the Waterford Technical School, he opened an exhibition of a loan collection of pictures by well-known Irish artists, which is being sent around the country for display in technical schools.

They had, said the Archdeacon, heard it complained that people outside Dublin were at a great disadvantage in matters connected with art, because they got no opportunity of seeing such collections, and it was, therefore very wise, enterprising, and public-spirited on the part of the Department to plan a scheme for bringing these pictures around the country.

Mr. R. Burke, Art Master, School of Art, Waterford, said the pictures were typical of the style of eminent Irish artists, so that, from a student's point of view, it was the most interesting group of Irish paintings that had ever come to Waterford.

Back to Normal

Great Northern Railway's services have returned to normal.

The voice of the North still is heard in the streets of the metropolis, but most of the holiday-makers have returned home, and the three trains a day each way between the two principal termini comfortably accommodate users of the line.

The 7.35 a.m. train Dublin to Dundalk has been altered to 7.55 a.m., and will take effect on the 1st of next month. The 8.45 a.m. Dublin to Bundoran and the 12.10 a.m. Bundoran to Dublin will continue until the 30th of this month.

Russian Steamroller

Public interest during the last few days has been occupied so keenly with the spectacular events in Italy that the progress of the Russian offensive against the Germans has been squeezed out of the front pages of the newspapers. At any other time the exploits of the Soviet armies would have taken pride of place over everything else. The Russian forces are advancing steadily along the entire front from a point north of Smolensk to the Sea of Azov. During the last seven weeks they have made remarkable progress, particularly in the area of the Northern Ukraine; and yesterday's capture of Bakhmach, an important junction on the railway line between Kursk and Kiev, brings the latter city, "Mother of Cities" as it is known in Russia, into definite peril. The Red troops have stormed the Desna river, the last natural line of defence before the Dnieper. Bryansk still is holding out; but, if it should fall to the Russian forces, Minsk would be threatened. In the Southern Ukraine the fall of Stalino has transformed the entire situation. It seems that the Russian forces have "fanned out" towards the west, capturing no fewer than 180 inhabited places, and cutting important railway lines at several points. The German News Agency yesterday admitted that Germany's forces in the Ukraine were faced with a threat of encirclement. The Russian front is so vast that it is almost impossible to deal with its fluctuations in any detail. There can be no doubt that the loss of Stalino has jeopardised the whole position of the Germans in Southern Russia. Since the fall of Taganrog the southern flank of Herr Hitler's armies has been, as it were, swinging loosely on the Stalino hinge; but now that that, too, has gone, there seems to be nothing to stand in the way of the advancing Russians between Mariupol and the Dnieper. The line at present runs roughly parallel to the Dnieper, with its famous "bend," or, as the Germans term it, its "knee." The Russians are exerting a steady pressure between Kharkov and the sea, and the Germans admit freely that they are retreating. According to reports from Berlin, the Wehrmacht not only is outnumbered, but it is in a definite inferiority in respect of aircraft, tanks, and, above all, of artillery. Its generals, realising the danger of their position, have been conducting a strategic withdrawal, in process of which they have yielded virtually the entire Donets Basin, Russia's richest industrial region west of the Urals. They also have abandoned a great part of the Ukraine granary; but it is impossible at the moment to say whether or not they have been able to remove the proceeds of the harvest with them.

In view of their admitted inferiority in respect of men and materials, the Germans' obvious strategy ought to be to shorten their lines before the onset of winter; but a glance at the map will show that, in point of fact, the Russian front at the moment is longer than it was when the counter-offensive started on July 12th. Both sides are racing against time. Within the next few weeks the rains will have started in Southern Russia, turning the roads into almost unnegotiable quagmires, and making war of manœuvre virtually impossible. The Russian generals are striving desperately to reach the line of the Dnieper before that time, and are hoping to reach Kiev, possession of which would place them in a powerful position for the winter. The Germans, very naturally, are trying to prevent this plan. So long as they hold Kiev, Kremenchug and Dnepropetrovsk, their armies will have a reasonable prospect of comfortable winter quarters—a consideration of major importance in view of the experience of the last two years. For that reason they are fighting exceedingly clever delaying actions, contesting every rood of ground with their rearguards, while they are withdrawing their main forces westwards, taking with them as much material as possible. The loss of Stalino has been a heavy blow to them; for it may involve the evacuation of the whole Crimea before the winter, and, now that Italy is out of the war, control of the Black Sea has become more important than ever from the German point of view. In the north the position remains virtually static. Smolensk still is in German hands. There has been little or no serious fighting between Vitebsk and Leningrad; and, so long as the Germans remain in control of Bryansk, the central sector of the front will be fairly safe. There can be no doubt, however, that the military initiative along the entire line rests in the hands of the Russians. The change in the situation during the last few weeks has been remarkable. Another winter campaign seems now to be inevitable; but, whereas in previous years the Russians have been on the defensive during the autumn months, and have been forced to retreat into the shelter of the November snows, the boot to-day is on the other foot, and it is the Germans who find themselves waiting for the protection of "General Winter."

Young Miners

The British mineworkers have recorded their "dismay and astonishment" at the latest step in the organisation of the mining industry. The Independent National Tribunal set up, under the presidency of Lord Porter, in accordance with the findings of the Greene Tribunal, has dealt with its first appeal, which concerned the fixing of a minimum wage for miners under the age of 21. It was the intention that the Tribunal should hold a fair balance between workers and mine-owners; but the workers are now astounded to learn that the minima settled upon by the Tribunal—which they had hoped would result in an all-round increase for juvenile miners—are, in fact, lower than those now being paid in many mines. The trouble appears to be based on an initial misunderstanding. The Tribunal holds that it was required only to fix a minimum, and not to supersede the present method of negotiation in regard to wage scales, above that minimum; and it adds that its figure "exceeds by a considerable amount the wages paid in the larger districts in this country." The Mineworkers' Federation, on the other hand, clearly expected that the Tribunal's "minimum" would be in fact a national standard wage, considerably higher than that now paid in any area. Mr. Lawther, the president of the Federation, has already signified his dissatisfaction by cancelling an engagement to broadcast an appeal for recruits for the mines—an indication that he feels that he is unjustified in attempting to attract young men into the industry, when the rewards are such as are offered at present. The minimum wages fixed by the Tribunal run from 32s. a week, for an underground worker of 14 years, to 62s. for one of 20 years—a figure somewhat lower than that which prevails at present in both South Wales and Durham. In both areas the adult miner—that is, the miner over 21—is paid about £2 a week more than the miner of 20 years. This artificial distinction, based on a difference of a year in age, is one of the more difficult points in any settlement. The national minimum wage for the "adult" worker has been fixed already, in accordance with the recommendations of the Forster Committee, at 83s. weekly. There is little doubt that the mineworkers expected that the wages fixed for miners below the age of 21 would show a general increase, and also a scaling upward to meet the minimum of 83s. at the age of 21. Unless these basic points are settled, the coal-mining industry's hopes of attracting young men to the mines are small; the older miners, embittered by their treatment since the last war, will do all they can to dissuade their sons from following their steps. The mines are the foundations of Britain's industry in peace, as in war. They will flourish again only when it is understood that the miner, like the soldier, is a national responsibility.
